1. The following travel reports from [REDACTED] are transmitted herewith:

2. The [REDACTED] reports make use of references to the [REDACTED] Brief dated 2 April 1952. Records here indicate that this particular brief has never been sent to Washington. Accordingly, a copy of the brief has been assembled and is transmitted herewith. In addition, [REDACTED] reports have been informally annotated to make them somewhat more self-explanatory.

[REDACTED] will also prepare reports on his part in the [REDACTED] hands. These reports may well contain valuable information and photographic documentation on the passage [REDACTED] Although I have good reason to believe that these reports exist, copies have not been made available to me here. It is suggested that, if Washington desires copies of such reports by the tug party as may exist, the matter might well be taken up with the [REDACTED]
